

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

This is a highly unusual situation!

Learning Outcome

Discuss factual and abstract information about common everyday or job related topics in both work and social contexts appropriate for the interlocutor.

Ask your partner:

- Do you think it's important to be insistent (never stop trying) when you're looking for a job? Why or why not?
- What are some other occasions it may be important to be insistent? Why?

Can Do Statements

- I can explain misfortunate events or things that have happened related to work and jobs.
- I can express necessity and unnecessary.
- I can give a supported argument about a work-related process.

Let's Explore!

Adam wants to see Mr. Brody! Where is the job posting?

* A "job posting" is an advertisement looking for a person to fill a job.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Secretary: Welcome to BFP. How can I help you?
- Adam: Hello, I would like to see Mr. Brody, please.
- Secretary: Your name, please?
- Adam: Adam Bari.
- Secretary: Do you have an appointment?
- Adam: No, actually.
- Secretary: I'm sorry, but Mr. Brody is not available. Could I ask what is the nature of your visit?
- Adam: I am interested in employment. I have a friend, Kristi Lenard, who was just offered a job as editorial assistant. She has informed me there was another position available.
- Secretary: You need to send your résumé by e-mail.
- Adam: Yes, I've already done that. The problem is that I couldn't find the job advertised yesterday. I suspect you have taken down the job posting from the website. This makes me nervous, because I haven't been called in for an interview yet.
- Secretary: You needn't worry. If Mr. Brody has received your résumé, he will consider it alongside the other candidates, in all fairness. I think you have done everything you can.
- Adam: I believe my friend has talked to Mr. Brody about me. I would just like introduce myself quickly.
- Secretary: I'm sorry, but that's impossible. You mustn't insist further. Mr. Brody is a very busy man.
- Adam: I hope that I have not annoyed you. Please, believe me, Mr. Brody knows who I am and has expressed an interest in meeting me. I'm sorry to insist, but I really must see Mr. Brody. He will understand. He will agree to meet me.
- Secretary: This is a most unusual situation.
- Adam: Yes, I understand that it appears that way.
- Secretary: Since you are so insistent, I will ask Mr. Brody if he is willing to meet you.
- Adam: Oh, thank you!

Let's Practice!

Adam asks Martha about the job posting

Instructions: Circle the option that best completes each sentence.

- She _____ me there was another position available.
a) has informed b) have informing
- I suspect you _____ down the job posting from the website.
a) have taken b) has take
- I think you _____ everything you can.
a) has done b) have done
- I believe my friend _____ to Mr. Brody about me.
a) have talking b) has talked
- I hope that I _____ you.
a) has not annoying b) have not annoyed

Let's Practice!

Adam is very insistent.

Instructions: Find the words and expressions in the word search.

Words

- in all fairness
- take down
- the nature of your visit
- to insist
- insistent

Extension Activity

You want to insist on something. Prepare a dialogue.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Think of a situation in which you need to insist on something. It could be at work, at a store, at a hospital, etc.
- Write a dialogue of 120 - 150 words. One person insists on something. The other person starts to refuse, but ends by accepting.
- Use appropriate vocabulary, like in all fairness and you mustn't insist.
- Practice your dialogue with a partner.
- Change roles.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I write a dialogue insisting on something.

☐ ☐

I express what is necessary.

☐ ☐

I refuse and then accept a demand.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- in all fairness (expression): to be fair and just towards other people e.g. If Mr. Brody has received your résumé, he will consider it alongside the other candidates, in all fairness.
- to take down (verb): to remove e.g. I suspect you have taken down the job posting from the website.
- the nature of your visit (expression): the reason you are here
e.g. Could I ask what is the nature of your visit?
- to insist (verb): to demand or ask repetitively
e.g. You mustn't insist any further.
- insistent (adjective): describes a person who does not let go of an idea when talking to other people e.g. Since you are so insistent, I will ask Mr. Brody if he is willing to meet you.

Learning Points

Using the Present Perfect Tense to Refer to Past Actions

You use the Present Perfect tense to talk about a past event or action that is connected to the present in some way.

You can use the Present Perfect tense when you don't know when the event happened, or when that information is not important. You refer to an unspecified time in the past.

For example:

She has informed me there was another position available.

The structure of the Present Perfect tense is:

subject	has/have	past participle
I/They/We/You	have	been
It/He/She	has	worked

There are some verbs which express a previous thought before an action. These verbs can be used before the Present Perfect tense to refer to a past action. E.g. assume, believe, expect, guess, hope, imagine, presume, suppose, suspect and think.

Examples:

- I suspect you have taken down the job posting from the website.
- I believe my friend has talked to Mr. Brody about me.
- I hope that I have not annoyed you.

Learning Points

Modals Expressing Necessity: Need and Must

When you want to express necessity or when things are not necessary, you use modals.

The modal need refers to necessity, when something is an obligation.

For example:

You need to send your résumé by e-mail.

You can use need not (needn't) when you want to refer to something that is not necessary. Because it is rather formal sounding, you use it mainly in workplace settings or in writing. In conversation, you most often use have to or don't have to.

For example:

You needn't worry. If Mr. Brody has received your résumé, he will consider it alongside the other candidates.

The modal must refers to strong necessity, when something is absolutely necessary.

For example:

I'm sorry to insist, but I really must see Mr. Brody.

You can use must not (mustn't) to talk about things that are prohibited. This is very strong language.

For example:

You mustn't insist any further.

Examples:

- I'm sorry, but I must ask you to leave.
- You mustn't stay in the office area after we close for the day.

