

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

I had wanted to help you, but ...

Learning Outcome

Discuss factual and abstract information about common everyday or job related topics in both work and social contexts appropriate for the interlocutor.

Can Do Statements

- I can request or report facts about events or actions related to work and jobs.
- I can talk about unfulfilled plans.
- I can express necessity, duty, and advice about a work-related process.

Ask your partner:

- Do you think a person looking for a job should use social media? Why or why not?
- What do you think it means to have an online presence?
- Is it important to have an online presence? Why or why not?

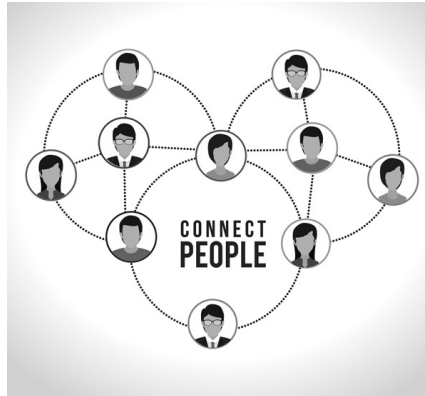

Let's Explore!

Mr. Goldstein responds to Adam's e-mail. Are his services essential?

* "Essential" means very necessary, something you can't do without.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Dear Mr. Bari,

Thank you very much for your e-mail introducing yourself. Ms Sanders told me about your situation. I had hoped to talk to her before I wrote this letter, but she appears to be very busy.

I am most interested in helping young people who want to enter the field of communications start their career. I imagine you have experienced difficulty finding a job in this competitive field. I expect you have been through many interviews, without a great deal of success.

My guess is that you have struggled to find interesting job postings, to no avail. I understand all these problems. That's why the services of a headhunter are so essential for young people in today's job market. You must keep trying. You mustn't give up on your job search.

Let me assure you that a headhunter such as myself can be a great help in your job search. You needn't feel alone. Young people today need help to secure a good job.

In addition to recommending employment opportunities, I could help you to grow your network of contacts and give you strategies for building your online presence. We can set up a meeting to discuss different opportunities.

I had intended to make a presentation on careers in communications, but it was canceled due to lack of enrollment. I had expected many people to participate, but they did not register in time.

Please contact my office by telephone for a follow-up meeting.

Regards,

Andrew Goldstein

Let's Practice!

Mr. Goldstein tells Adam to keep trying.

Instructions: Circle the correct options to complete the sentence correctly. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. You mustn't (giving / to give / give) up on your job search.
2. You needn't (feel / to feel / feeling) alone.
3. Young people today (mustn't / need / must to) help to secure a good job.
4. You must (to keep / keep / keeping) yourself updated on the latest job search techniques.

Let's Practice!

Mr. Goldstein tells Adam about his plans that never went through.

Instructions: Match the sentences on the left with their missing parts on the right.

COLUMN A

1. I had hoped to talk to her before I wrote this letter, (___)
2. I had intended to make a presentation on careers in communications, (___)
3. I had expected many people to participate, (___)
4. I had wanted to create your online profile today, (___)
5. I had planned a meeting with a hiring manager to discuss potential opportunities, (___)

COLUMN B

- a. but they did not register in time.
- b. but she appears to be very busy.
- c. but unfortunately he was unable to attend.
- d. but it was cancelled due to lack of enrolment.
- e. but I didn't have your personal information.

Extension Activity

You are a headhunter. Respond to the letter you wrote in the last lesson.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Start with the date and opening salutation of a letter.
- Thank the person for contacting you.
- Explain how you can help the person.
- Explain what you have done in the past to help people.
- Give suggestions about what to do next.
- Conclude the letter with a final closing.
- Write a total of 150 - 200 words. Make sure you use correct spelling and punctuation.
- Read your letter aloud to a partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I write a letter following the correct structure.

☐ ☐

I write about my past experiences helping someone find a job.

☐ ☐

I give suggestions for finding a job.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- competitive (adjective): with a lot of competition
e.g. I imagine you have experienced difficulty finding a job in this competitive field.
- let me assure you (expression): don't worry; never fear
e.g. Let me assure you that a headhunter such as myself can be a great help in your job search.
- online presence (noun): your reputation on social media
e.g. I could help you to grow your network of contacts and give you strategies for building your online presence.
- regards (expression): a final closing to a formal letter e.g. Regards, Andrew Goldstein.
- to no avail (expression): without success
e.g. My guess is that you have struggled to find interesting job postings, to no avail.

Learning Points

Expressing Unfulfilled Plans: Past Perfect with Before and For

When you planned to do something and did not do it, you call this an unfulfilled plan.

You use the Past Perfect to talk about unfulfilled plans.

The Past Perfect expresses the idea that something did or did not occur before another action in the past. It can also show that something did or did not happen before a specific time in the past.

For example:

I had intended to make a presentation on careers in communications, but it was canceled due to lack of enrollment.

I had expected many people to participate, but they did not register in time.

You use the words before and for with the Past Perfect.

You use before to refer to the more 'past' action (the action that happened first).

I had hoped to talk to her before I wrote this letter, but she appears to be very busy.

You use the preposition for to talk about how long an action lasted.

For example:

I had wanted to meet a headhunter for over a month.

Examples:

- I had planned on leaving early, but I was held up at work.
- We had both wanted to apply for the job, but it was already filled.
- They had wanted to go to the conference, but they couldn't take the time off.

Learning Points

Modals for Expressing Necessity: Must and Mustn't

You use the modal must to talk about necessity - when it is imperative that something is done.

Must can sound quite serious and is most commonly used in writing. Native speakers prefer the more flexible form have to when speaking.

For example:

You must keep trying.

Young people today must ask for help to secure a good job.

You use must not to talk about prohibited actions. It is common to read must not in rules, laws and regulations.

 Pronunciation tip:

When pronouncing the contracted form of must not (mustn't), you pronounce it as mussint.

Practice saying these sentences:

You mustn't give up on your job search.

You mustn't feel alone.

You use need not (needn't) when you want to refer to something that is not necessary.

Examples:

- You must fill out this application and send it in.
- You mustn't wait until the last moment to do do it.
- You must ask them to notify you.

