Let's Start!

Innovation is the key to success!

Learning Outcome

Discuss factual and abstract information about common everyday or job related topics in both work and social contexts appropriate for the interlocutor.

Ask your partner:

- Would you say you are good at innovation? Why or why not?
- What are some innovations that have been made in your field of work?
- Were they good changes? Why or why not?

Can Do Statements

- I can request or report facts about events or actions related to work and jobs.
- I can express necessity and duty about a work-related process.
- I can exchange opinions about my academic studies and my work in various time frames.

Let's Explore!

Adam and Kristi talk about BFP Publishing.

* "BFP" stands for Books for People, the name of Mr. Brody's publishing company.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Kristi: Nice to see you, Adam. How's the job search going?
- Adam: I'm doing my best, but it's not easy.
- Kristi: I know.
- Adam: Did you accept the job at BFP?
- Kristi: Yes, I accepted the job as soon as they offered it to me. I'm starting next week.
- Adam: That's great!
- Kristi: Did you ever find out why they removed the job posting from the website?
- Adam: I'm not sure why, but I was able to meet with Mr. Brody.
- Kristi: That's amazing!
- Adam: I was tired of just waiting. It took a lot of courage, but I finally met him. I decided I needed to be noticed, not just be a résumé on a pile. He was impressed by my elevator speech.
- Kristi: As he should be! We worked on it so much.
- Adam: After the pitch, we talked about different things while we were in his office, like the future of journalism.
- Kristi: He's a kind man.
- Adam: He has asked for two letters of reference.
- Kristi: That sounds very promising!
- Adam: Ever since I met him, I've had the sense he is looking for people with bold ideas who aren't afraid to propose changes. They say that innovation is the key to success today. From what I can tell, BFP needs adapting.
- Kristi: That's true.
- Adam: We talked a lot about that in some of my communications courses. In the past, organizations survived by focusing on providing quality products. News outlets were no exception. If they kept delivering the newspaper, they were fine.
- Kristi: But things have changed.
- Adam: Yes. News organizations need to be changed. Due to push factors such as the rise of the internet, globalization and outsourcing, there is an increased push for efficiency and effectiveness, while maintaining quality.
- Kristi: Yes, but the realities of our readership need to be understood. Modern internet users have so many choices about where to get their news. They won't accept mediocrity because they know they can easily go somewhere else.

Learning Points

Simple Present, Present Continuous, Simple Past and Present Perfect Tenses

These four tenses all have very different uses. It is important that you understand the differences so that you can communicate your ideas in an efficient and comprehensive way.

Look at the chart as reference:

Tense	Meaning/Use	Structure	Example
Simple Present	express habits/truths scheduled event/plan	subject + verb + object	They say that innovation is the key to success today.
Present Continuous	action in progress at the time of speaking planned action in the future habitual action	subject + am/is/are + verb -ing	I'm starting the job next week.
Simple Past	completed past action	subject + verb + object	I was tired of just waiting. It took a lot of courage, but I finally met him.
Present Perfect	past action at an unspecified time action that started in the past and is continuing now	subject + has/have + past participle	He has asked for two letters of reference.

Examples:

- In the past, organizations survived by focusing on providing quality products.
- Modern internet users have so many choices about where to get their news.

Learning Points

Expressing Necessity at Work: Need + Passive Infinitive and Need + Gerund

You can use need + passive infinitive and need + verb -ing to talk about necessity. You use these structures to focus on the thing that needs doing, not the person who is doing it.

In workplace scenarios, it is common for people to talk in more indirect ways. This kind of communication is more polite. Passive structures are part of this indirect method of communication.

In this structure, the subject of the sentence is the thing that needs doing.

Subject + Need + Passive Infinitive

I decided I needed to be noticed, not just be a résumé on a pile.

When you use need with a gerund (verb -ing), it takes on a passive meaning.

Subject + Need + Verb -ing

From what I can tell, BFP needs adapting.

Examples:

- News organizations need to be changed.
- The realities of our readership need to be understood.
